

Editorial

Welcome to the 2020 edition, Volume 4, of the Journal of Anti-Corruption Law. This edition contains four academic articles focusing on economic crimes in selected countries and under the African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child.

- In his contribution, Ben Sihanya contextualises the viability of lifestyle audits as an emerging anti-corruption tool in the public sector: concepts, essentials and prospects.
- This is followed by the contribution of Felix Eboibi who conceptualises the notion of Computers for Cybercrime Justice under the Cybercriminals and Nigerian Cybercrimes Act 2015.
- In his article Robert Nanima evaluates the adequacy of the African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child regarding Economic Crimes in spaces of Armed Conflict.
- The article by Lukiko Vedastus, Claudi Kilonzo and Hasani Kimela evaluates the efforts by the regime of President Magufuli in terms of the prevention and combatting of the Corruption Bureau's role in the Post-Independence anti-corruption efforts .
